

Scan-to-lead flow — "Tidemark IV", Hedley & Vane gallery

How a prospect goes from standing in front of a work to listening, watching, reading, or saving it — entirely on their own phone, no app install. The opt-in save asks for contact details only when it captures a warm lead for the gallery.

Image / media placeholder Body copy Primary action ↳ sketch = annotation

1 In the gallery — physical context

4

What the prospect controls →

→ Story & price, on their terms.

The basics before committing to a sales conversation.

→ Format is a choice.

Ear, eye, or text — whatever suits the moment.

→ No wall of sign-up.

Reading & listening never ask for an account — but every scan is a quiet signal.

→
picks one

Artwork page opens

Statement & price up top; four clear choices.
Everything reads without signing in.

5

Listen – hands-free

Plays in their earphones so they keep looking at the work, not the screen.

6

Watch – a short film

Artist studio & process footage for prospects who want to see the detail up close.

7

Read – at their own pace

Scrollable long-form: artist statement, technique, provenance. Adjustable text size.

8

9:41

exhibitguide

★ Save & request a price list

Save this work to your wishlist and we'll send the price list — the gallery follows up with relevant pieces.

☐ Google ☐ Apple

or with email

you@email.com

Save & share contact

Not now

Tapping "Save" captures the lead

The opt-in appears here and only here — the value (price list + saved work) is clear before asking for contact.

9

9:41

< Back exhibitguide

CREATE YOUR ACCOUNT

One step to save & enquire

Free · so your wishlist and price list follow you home.

☐ Google ☐ Apple

or

Email address

Choose a password

☒ Send me the price list & show alerts

Create account

Already a member? Log in

Account creation

SSO first to cut friction; email/password fallback. Opt-in here is what turns the save into a CRM lead.

10

9:41

exhibitguide

Saved to your wishlist

The gallery has your enquiry — read, listen and add notes after you leave.

MY WISHLIST · 3 WORKS

Add a note

Keep exploring the gallery

Saved — the lead is live

The gallery now has a warm, contextualised lead; the prospect gets a wishlist they can annotate & revisit.